I'm Karen Smith, and this photo is my sometimes wild and crazy family last Christmas in the coordinating t-shirts that I made for us all. If you think this picture is cute, you should have seen all of the poses that didn't quite make it to the page!

My husband, Evan, owns his own Pinball repair business – The Pinsmith – repairing all types and ages of pinball and arcade machines on location at his customers' locations. Our three children go to school in Midlothian ISD and we are very involved in their school activities.

A few years ago, I had just quit my job and we were a one-income household.

My oldest son came home with a form from his soccer team with a special flyer where parents could purchase tshirts to show their support for the team. The shirts would have the team name on the front, and the child's first name and number on the back.

He was so excited, and was looking forward to having mom wear a shirt with his team and name.

Unfortunately, the tshirts were over $50 each. And we just didn't have it in our budget right at that time.

I hated to disappoint him. I just hated it! I could tell that he was disappointed when I looked at his face – and not for himself, but he wanted me to have a shirt just like all of the other moms on the team.

And I knew that there were probably tons of other parents out there in the same boat. Families with one income. Single parents. Or those who just had not budgeted that much for extras right after the start of school, when they had been budgeting for new school clothes and supplies and everything else related.

So I started doing some research and realized I could print t-shirts myself. I found some great reputable vendors who could provide the blank t-shirts at very affordable prices, and vendors for the vinyl I would need, and sources for the required equipment. And I invested what little extra money we had and started my own business with the goal of providing affordable options for teams, schools, parents, and others who wanted better control of their budget.

Spirit 'N More was born.

Since then, we have steadily provided custom-printed school, team and organization apparel to more and more groups in Midlothian, expanding later to Ellis County, and adding specialized printing for local small businesses.

We have printed thousands and thousands of tshirts for businesses throughout DFW, and have steadily been adding new items to print, including designs using rhinestones, and additional items such as baseball caps, water bottles, and novelties. While still focused on providing t-shirt printing for the area around Midlothian, Texas, we are now serving clients from all over Texas.

Need affordable tshirt printing in Midlothian or anywhere in the US? We are your one-stop shop for quality t-shirt printing that will meet your budget.
